What is the Foundation?

It was early in 1987 that Merv Norman, Greg's father, wrote to major companies advising of the intention of forming a Foundation to fund the tuition of Queensland junior golfers. His letter, in part read :

"Probably more than any other sport, the game of golf requires self-discipline and determination – qualities that help to build character and personal strength in our young people, and it is on our young people that the future of golf and of our country rests. It is therefore beneficial that we encourage young people to take up the game, to help them develop positive skills and attitudes and to progress through further play and competition to succeed in life.

My son Greg came through these junior ranks and now he has specifically requested the formation of the Greg Norman Golf Foundation to enable him to contribute to the development and expansion of the playing of golf by juniors. He will actively support the Foundation on a personal basis, as his time and schedule permit. The Foundation will provide professional guidance and instruction throughout Queensland to school students and those in other educational establishments, children with specific physical disabilities and junior members of golf clubs."

The objective of the Foundation is to work at the Heart of the Game - the 'grassroots' level - by providing tuition at schools, clinics and camps throughout Queensland.
